MONEY IN TRANSMISSION IS NOT A MEDIUM OF DISEASE

(From the New York Tribune)

Dr. A. H. Doty, health officer of this city, who for years has made a study of infectious diseases, and especially the medium of their transmission, does not agree with the theorists, who contend that money is a transmitter of disease. Dr. Doty said yesterday that, while bacteriological examinations were presented to show that different forms of bacteria were found on money, practical and careful observation had proved that infection was caused and epidemics were spread in nearly all instances by personal contact with infected persons, and more especially with ambulant ones, rather than through the handling of money and clothing.

Concerning the current agitation on money as an agent of disease, Dr. Doty said:

"The theory that money acts as a medium of infection is a plausible one, particularly as it deals with an agent which is being constantly transmitted from one person to another and among classes of people. Clothing, rags, merchandise, cargoes of vessels etc., are also regarded as means by which disease is commonly transmitted.

"This belief is popular because it offers an explanation for outbreaks of infectious disease the origin of which is unknown. Modern sanitation, however, does not regard as valuable theories which are unsupported by fact or practical experience. The theory that money acts as a medium of infection carries with it no satisfactory or even reasonable proof. It is true that from time to time the results of bacteriological examinations are presented to show that different forms of bacteria are found on money. No one who is familiar with the subject doubts this, but the same organisms may at almost any time be found on our hands. These bacteria are as a rule harmless, and some of them are a benefit to mankind. Even from a bacteriological point of view there are no reasons why money would be likely to transmit disease. However, this question must be decided principally by reliable statistics and the results of practical experience.

"Whoever may be inclined to investigate this subject in a reasonable way and will visit the treasury department at Washington, where an enormous amount of old and filthy paper money is being constantly handled and re-handled, or will seek information from bank officials, will find that those who are connected with this work do not contract infectious diseases any oftener than anyone else.

"There is no reason why persons thus employed may not contract infectious disease, because they are subjected to the same outside exposure that others are, but this furnishes no proof that money is the medium of transmission. It is rather to be regarded as a coincidence there is probably no doubt that in rare instances money, like other things, may act as a means of transmitting disease, but it is so uncommon that we must not give it undue consideration, for there are so many other considerations with which we must deal in protecting the public health that constitute a real menace that we should rather devote our energies to these than to conditions which are based on theory.

The fear that money transmits disease is, I am quite sure, largely due to the fact that it is frequently old and filthy. While this is unpleasant in many ways, it does not indicate the presence of pathogenic organisms—that is, the germs which transmit infectious disease."

AFTER OFFICIAL SCALP OF SUPER-INTENDENT LONG

PRESIDENT OF TEMPE NORMAL IS TRYING TO GET TERRITORIAL HEAD OF SCHOOLS FIRED—SEVERELY CRITICIZED.

When all the rest of the people of Arizona are busy forgetting all but the pleasant events of the last week, the teachers of the territory are quietly discussing resolutions condemning Superintendent of Public Instruction Long, which were introduced last Friday at the session of the Arizona Teachers' association, says a Phoenix paper.

President Matthews of the Tempe Normal managed to get the resolutions carried over as unfinished business until the next annual session of the association, when they will again rise to be fought out among the teachers.

Professor Stilwell, principal of the Phoenix schools, introduced the resolutions. Asked about the matter today, he stated that the resolutions were presented to him at the request of a large number of teachers, some twenty of whom held a conference and decided to take the step.

Superintendent Long is made the subject of an attack that amounts to nothing less than a request to Governor Kibbey that he remove the superintendent of public instruction because of his failure to reciprocate with the teachers in their association.

When the resolutions were introduced they met with applause. After a motion had been made to adopt the resolutions, and discussed, another was made to lay them on the table. This was lost as was a motion to close the debate.

At this point someone suggested that it might be embarrassing for the president and secretary of the association to sign the resolutions because of their official relations to Superintendent Long. So strong an impression did this suggestion make that the teachers who had been pushing the resolutions for adoption were willing to compromise by the adoption of a motion to make them unfinished business for the next session of the association.

The resolutions over which there has been such discussion, and which threaten to line up every teacher in Arizona on one side or the other before the matters ends are as follows:

"We, the Teachers' Association of Arizona, in a body assembled, do respectfully petition his excellency, the governor of the territory of Arizona:

"1. Inasmuch as our present superintendent of public instruction has not, in our opinion, manifested the proper attitude toward the educational interests of the territory, and

"2. Inasmuch as we, as teachers, have not received that leadership and council in keeping with the demands of the modern progressive era in education, and

"3. Inasmuch as we have received adverse criticism without advice and help in our work, and in many cases sarcastic and discouraging replies concerning the administration of the school problems, and

"4. Furthermore, we, an organized body of educators, have felt the lack of the support of our territorial associations, that we would naturally expect, we respectfully ask for a change that will give to Arizona a leader of educational thought and progress as our superintendent of public instruction."

GENUINE RUN STARTED BY AN ADVERTISEMENT

A run which would have paled into insignificance, by comparison, that of the Knickerbocker Trust company, was started yesterday by an advertisement in the Silver Belt. Theo. E. Collins, proprietor of the White House, published fourteen items, briefly described, and in each instance gave the price. Before 10 o'clock in the morning three of the lines had been exhausted, people rushing to his store in a veritable stream all day. Another batch of bargains is announced this morning. Intelligent publicity pays. Ring up the Silver Belt advertising man.

AMUSEMENTS

At the Iris
 Wayne the Wizard is the vaudeville feature at the Iris this week. A big crowd witnessed both performances last night and every one was mystified by his great trunk mystery. Two men from the audience put his assistant in a sack and seal it, then place the sack in a trunk which has been examined. The trunk is then placed in the cabinet and in one second the lady steps from the cabinet and asks the committee to open the trunk, and to the surprise of everyone Wayne is found secured in the sack where the lady had been tied by the committee. This is a wonderful trick, considering the remarkably short time required to make the change.

The moving picture entitled "Are You an Elk?" is a very funny one, showing the initiation of a new member of the lodge. "The Romance of a Singer" is a very pretty moving picture.

Billy Cummings has two good illustrated songs. His singing of "You Splash Me and I'll Splash You" makes a hit with the audience.
